Franco

Yes. It's always good to look at these things that we are calling forth. The subjects are showing up because we call them forth as a collective and we say, "OK, it's time to play with this one." And we are all co-creating this tonight so we can all shift together,

Antonia

Yes. And depending on what culture you are from, the masculine vs. feminine is handled completely differently. When you look at our current history, meaning about the last 10,000 years that we know of, there has always been a struggle by women to be recognized as equals and there has always been this fight, this duality. And yet the feminine creative is what assists to create life. So those are the kinds of things that we are going to look at how that was purposely manipulated in order to keep humanity in a 3-D dense state. Because that's not really who we are. Whether you are manifesting yourself into a masculine body or you are manifesting yourself into a feminine body, we are all equal...we are all the same. But in order to keep humanity in a controllable denseness we fabricated inequality...and usually it's been on the women's side (laughs). So we are in the process of dissolving that.

So where do you want to start, Franco?

Franco

(laughs) Well, this is a very broad subject.

It's not so much that we are looking at the feminine and masculine because that's on a physical level. But we also have the feminine and masculine energy.

In actual fact, when we go to Source Essence, Who We Truly Are, there is no male or female; it is One Unit of energy that has all these potentialities that it can play with.

To create a world of duality and to create a world full of separation and to create many more opportunities to have different expressions, that was when the masculine/feminine...kind of "division", if you want to look at it that way...but it's really two separate operating systems which are combined. It was created on an energetic level, it was created on a level where we were going to create these expressions. And these expressions were...the way it was different is that one was creating on a form basis, and that means creating on a level of knowledge...and the other part was to create by having an access to a higher Essence...in this case intuitive and all that stuff, but a higher Essence in itself.

Then, of course, when it came down to being created as expressions on planets and in physical forms...prior to that there were levels of establishment that were created as part of the fragmentation, where certain energies would be much more nurturing. Certain energies would be collecting energies...collecting and sharing and community and so forth. And the other energy was conquering and dividing and so forth. So it created that part of it to, again create more polarity.

And this was representative on all levels...it was on the universal level, it was on the galactic level, on all the different planets, and so on. So this masculine/feminine energies...which were just energies at that time, which were codes...packages of expression and experiences were created in a way that...how can I say it?...just to have different ways of playing with it, really.

So when this occurred, it was an experiment: "Let's play with it and see what we can accomplish with it," and so forth. So the two energies were reproducing themselves. And, of course, on each planet it was going to be different because each planet had different levels of...

And also the feminine/masculine energies, because they embody the consciousness in it...depending on the state of consciousness of the soul, the expressions would be different. Because the lower state of consciousness...or enlightenment...it de-activated the enlightenment access of the soul. Then the role, the energies' prominent program was much more profound, much more powerful...in the sense where if you embodied a journey of expression in a feminine or in a masculine entity, you basically played the role very full-hearted, and it was very divided. The roles were very, very different from each other.

Then, of course, as the souls became more enlightened, then that division starts to become less and less...to the point where the two start to come together. So there's a balancing that occurs.

So a soul that is coming in at a higher enlightened state, no matter whatever form it took, it was not operating and utilizing the program fully...in the sense of being either a masculine energy or a feminine energy...with one conquering and taking over with power and so forth and the other one was more nurturing, bringing together and co-creating and so forth. So it didn't matter what expression it chose to do, it did not get caught up in it.

Just to give you an analogy: If you're in a sleep state/dense state or 3-D state, if you come in as a female, you're going to play a female role. And if you come in as a male, you are going to play the male role. But you're going to play it to the point that you're going to get lost in the role and you will think that you are only that role. And you don't even bring in the other part; you are basically just that role...very wholeheartedly. You don't even acknowledge the other part of you. So what happens is that there's a big separation...and this is where the whole thing about "a man doesn't understand a woman and a woman will never understand a man"...because as long as you're in the 3-D part of it where the consciousness is very low and the enlightenment state of the soul is very low, then the role is embodied fully and there is very little merging of the two. So that's that.

But, as you will notice, as the souls are becoming more and more enlightened and as people are shifting, what do you notice? You notice that there's a merging of male and female energies. Not only is there a merging but there is also the density of either one...because basically the program of either one starts to dissolve...in the sense where you are not playing the masculine role 100% anymore or the feminine role 100%, but rather you start to play both sides less and less and less. So you are bringing the two energies together so that you are allowing...it doesn't matter if you are in a male body or a female body...but in a sense you are bringing both parts of it...and neither one dictates your creation, your expression, your way of maneuvering through the experience...it becomes less and less dictating, in a sense.

So this is how it's been working on the energetic level when we're talking about all the different levels that have been experienced in the realms before when we started taking on embodiments. Of course, the embodiment part goes even further because now it's embodiment.

So the planets have done that: they have taken masculine and feminine roles and have divided it. Starting off with an unconscious state where the programs to create separation...programs designed very specifically to have separate experiences. And as the programs were experienced and so forth and the souls were choosing...because the only way the souls would be able to get to play with both energies was to embody a physicality as a male or a female. So this is why many of the souls have had male and female embodiments...or incarnations, I guess you could call it...but we call it embodiments because it happens on all the different planets...and to create that variety so that it has that exposure so it can actually create the simulation of enlightenment within the soul so that it actually, as it continues to incarnate or embody along the way, each time it has more of each side, and each time either energy becomes less and less dominant. Because the first thing that happens is that you start to (inaudible) guidance from the program of these male and female energies and the same thing is represented in the physical aspect of becoming in a male body or a female body but you're not so caught up in playing that role so very densely.

So in the first part you start to fade away how much energy is given to it and how much you are operated by it. But then what happens is that you are bringing both of them together. So you start to create a neutrality about it. So you are not dominant one way or the other. You may still be in a physicality and express it in a certain way so that means that you're in a vehicle that represents male or female, but you are not driven by male or female energies or male or female programs, per se.

So when the neutrality comes for both, you're basically merging the male and female expressions and experiences...not only on a physical level but you are also doing it on an energetic level, or basically the operating systems level. Once that occurs, in that neutral state you now create a whole new expression, a whole new experience...which is not separate because you are basically bringing all of it in.

The beauty of it is that you are bringing in both parts, but you are not using either part any longer: you are creating a new one. You are creating a new expression which does not have a dominant male or female; it actually creates a whole new creative expression...a different expression, a different experience...but it also embodies the energies...which, again, it utilizes bits and pieces of it from embodiments of even those on other planets also. So it brings all of that in together. So this is a kind of the step that occurs.

So now we're going through this very powerful process where the different separated roles are merging and neutralizing...and then creating anew...a new state altogether. So the new state will not reflect male or female by any means and it's not a collection of both. It takes the experiences of both and what it was able to learn and express through both and then creates a whole completely new, utilizing only bits and pieces of it...but it will not resemble anything that it's expressed or experienced before.

So that kind of gives you the groundwork on the big picture. But when you are coming back to the human aspect of it, it gets even more colorful.

In the human aspect, when you come into embodiment here on Earth, the soul is already coming in with a dominant energy of male or female depending on the series of experiences that it's had...that means the imprints within the soul being what it has expressed and experienced. Some souls on the planet have also been on other planets, so that then also brings that mix into it. Sometimes they are the ones who are actually operating very differently, or if you connect with them it's almost like you can't even tell if it's a male or a female because it's diluted with male and female expressions from other planets because that's what the soul is projecting. You have to understand...that's what the soul is projecting...so the soul is streaming that.

But then you also have the physical because the physical is encoded at the level where it's actually created with the cells splitting and so forth and so it is taking on codes from Mom and Dad. If Mom and Dad are already in a higher state of consciousness and in more of an enlightened state, then what happens is that Mom and Dad's enlightened state...or even if it is just one of the parents...already starts to change the operating program within the physicality. So when a baby or another creation comes along through Mom and Dad, it already has less of the old patterns because it has already started to be re-programmed. So the baby would actually be able to be exposed to updated codes. So the soul that's stepping in already has an advantage, in a sense, because already it does not have to deal with starting completely from 3-D masculine/feminine energies and that separation. It already been re-programmed. So even though it steps in to a male or a female physicality, it is not grounded in the sense where it is programmed to be totally either male or female.

Now the soul itself, depending on its state of being, will also alter the programming of the physicality that it embodies. For example, like I was saying, the parents come along, they are already enlightened to some degree so they have already started to change the codes within themselves which is now part of the manufacturing of this new physicality, the soul steps into it...and say the soul is already in a higher consciousness in itself, so its imprints have already been cleared or, in a sense, expressed so it no longer needs to have those other imprints within it where it has been dominant one way or another or carry any of the old, old stuff. So when it steps into the physicality now, it steps into a completely different playground because the playground is already pre-prepped to some degree. So now it can move forward and it doesn't have to start off with a dense, deeply programmed physicality.

So when it does step in, then at that point in time it won't be expressing either a predominantly masculine or feminine personality from the old programming...which most of humanity has been expressing over thousands and thousands of years. So that's the first part.

Then the second part is that the soul actually goes with the body, actually goes through the (inaudible) process which is basically adopting whatever its surroundings are. So it starts off observing Mom and Dad but it also observes family members, it observes siblings, playmates, and whoever else it is exposed to. But then the next step is that it steps into the other modalities which are more education based where you're talking about schooling, you're talking about media programming (which is basically watching what is the representation of male and female in ads, TV programs and so forth) and whatever else...so there's that part of it. Then, of course, if there's a specific religious affiliation or something of that nature then that is another level of programming...and then the cultural level, and so on. So all of this is part and parcel of the role that it plays. Now, of course the soul is always fully in charge of how much of all that it chooses to adopt or not.

So you could come in in a state where, say if you are in an enlightened state, it doesn't matter if you go through all the programming (which I've just described)...if the soul is at a level where its operating system is not so open to adopt any of those older vibrations or ways of expressing, you'll notice that it will utilize very little or nothing of it. And a lot of times, those are the ones who actually act very weird in the sense that they don't necessarily stick to whatever everyone else is experiencing. So they see things differently, feel things differently and so forth. That's kind of the way it's been expressed in that way.

Now when we're looking at the big picture of the other part, which is where we're bringing in thousands of years of programming, thousands of years of expressions and experiences where it was altered, then you're now expressing and experiencing the other part of it: which is now you're going into the program of 4-D straight off.

If you're looking at a female, there's been a lot of deep programming around what the role of what a female is and the value of the female and how it can be the victim, but at the same time, in a sense what value it has/doesn't have, what it can or cannot do, how it should respond or not respond, how it should serve or not serve the male counterpart...and all that stuff. So it goes even deeper in that aspect of it. And over thousands of years certain species have had certain roles.

I've heard people say, "Well, women have been in a disadvantaged state." Well, let's take a look at this in two parts.

The first part is that at the soul level there has never been a disadvantage because the soul is neither male nor female; it may have imprints and have a predisposition to go one way or another for a period of time while it's going through its learning, but it's not one or the other. So it's not really caught up in the male or female aspect of it. So in that sense it doesn't become a deep part of its operating system...or adopt that aspect.

The soul itself has had so many different experiences...and that's one of the beauties of having so many different experiences...because when it reincarnates it reincarnates in different cultures, in different parts of the planet and in different physicalities (some male, some female), some souls have even incarnated on other planets and so have had other experiences there. So it does have its own level of variety.

So when you're looking at the soul level, you might think that because it's expressing itself in a physicality and is in a physical form that it's at a disadvantage...but it isn't...there is nothing of that sort. It's only when you start stepping into the program and start to play with it that you actually take on any of it. But, again, it's still only a role.

So when you step into the physicality of a female, you could say that you're stepping into a disempowered state because you have no value, you're not in charge, you can't do this or that, you need to serve this or that, you need to be the keeper of the family and so forth. So you might say that the woman is second class, or something of that nature, or at least that experience of being in the physicality of a woman. So there's a lot of pressure from that. And there's a lot of feeling that not only do you not have value but that a man has power over you that you are subject to, that you have to be afraid of it, that you have to serve it, and all of this stuff. So it is a very low energy in that respect. Plus the fact that in many cases there's tons and tons of input that, as a woman, you have to respond in a certain way, have to be very weak in the emotional part of it, and so forth...it goes on and on because it goes into a lot of depth.

So then you can take a look at the man or the male role or whatever you want to call it. As much as it may look like it takes on the role of empowerment and so forth, the male role is also seen as having weaknesses within itself. First of all, in the male role there's the sense of responsibility...there's responsibility for everything. It is the one who needs to conquer, that needs to prove itself. Because, at this point in time, as much as the woman may need to prove herself within her own community (that is, by serving in a certain way), the male role has even much more because now it has to play the role very strong. You need to be strong, you need to be the fighter, you need to conquer, you need to be responsible for the community wellbeing and so forth. And you need to meet standards...the community standards and the standards of the male community and whatever else. So there's a lot of pressure with respect to that part of it.

Many times when looking at both roles, people think that there's less pressure being either female or male...but, in actual fact, there isn't any difference. The pressure is there either in equal amounts or sometimes slightly more in one way or another. Because when you're deep into the role, one role isn't going to be more charmed than the other role because the roles are very intensely programmed in, very intensely experienced in itself. So, you have to understand, this has all been part of the experiential component of it.

So now that we're going through this process of transformation...and this is happening on a universal basis...there's a lot of talk about energies coming in...feminine energies and so forth. Well, if you're looking at it in that respect and saying, "Well at one time we used to play with the female energy as the dominant one and then the male energy was dominant," and this was part of the cycle. It was a cycle that was being expressed and experienced because it gave equal balance to say, "OK, we're going to go from one side to the other. We now going to allow the female energy to be..." when that was created, that was part of it. Because it was created from the split at the start but when that split occurred it decided to play both sides. Again...it was only to balance

You have to remember that there's not only the individual souls that are expressing itself both sides. This is why the karmic thing that people talked about saying, "Well, whatever you do in one lifetime you have to do the opposite," and so forth. That was the balancing. And it's the same thing that's happening on a larger scale with over-souls and so forth.

Whenever planets were being created, a dominance of one energy or another was also created just to create variety. Because all the planets were in different locations, you wouldn't have male energy across all the planets. It's been scattered. So if there was 400 planets, there would be 200 expressing more male energy and 200 expressing more female energy in the original design program...if you had to look at it that way. So it always created a balance in itself.

Now as these feminine and masculine energies come along...and I'm not going to get into all the different battles and so forth that were created to create an even grander division and express that way...so I won't even go there because it's not necessary...we're going into the history of what we've created, but most of it right now is moot because it's not necessary because we are already stepping out of that.

So, as I was saying, the planets were divided and had different experiences of one or the other. And it was really just to balance. So whenever we had waves of changes, in order to create variety, the planets would actually switch. So a planet that was predominantly masculine would switch into predominantly feminine and vice versa, because it created even more variety.

You have to understand...this was all a game and it was just creating more variety so that both sides...and because, the thing is, when the energies would shift it would still be in a certain embodiment...that means that the physicalities were different. So if the energies shifted on planet Earth...which it is...but it is not any longer shifting for any planet any longer. It has been dominant energies of masculine on planet Earth so now the feminine energies are coming in. So it's basically a switchover occurring. So it's basically going from masculine to feminine...or at least it looks that way.

But what's happening now is that the change that's occurring is that it's not going from masculine to feminine but rather it is bringing the feminine in to the point where it matches and balances the masculine and the feminine...and so masculine energies are equal...and then it becomes neutral. So now it is no longer dominant in either masculine or feminine, but it has both. But then both these energies start to merge. But then the merging also starts dissolving its rigidity and the density of the program being dominantly one side or another. So it becomes a new malleable program and creates an entirely new one. And this new one is not dominant in either masculine or feminine.

So the expression on the masculine side, if you had to look at it, was to use knowledge. So the masculine expression was knowledge. Through knowledge it had power and through knowledge it was power. So it basically expressed itself on all the planets in that way....of course each one was slightly different.

The expression when it came to the feminine part was more of a connection to Source Itself...basically having an energy where it was not knowledge but rather a knowing. It wasn't using, say in an argument form, left brain. It was not utilizing analytical aspects. It's like this: learning how to play the game and then playing the game. Where the feminine energy was seeing the game and being more in charge of how to play the game and really not taking the game so seriously. And so the feminine energy was more holistic, in a sense, if you had to look at it that way.

Now, of course, it wasn't in a level of perfection because in order to create the dance of polarity and to create the dance of being polarized one side or another, of course the codes were not complete on either side. So even though it was expressed on a creative Oneness state wanting to keep one while the other was divide and conquer, the two were not in a whole state anyway.

Now in going back to look into all of that as we are stepping into it now, the new energies are going to embody the full amount.

And this is one of the reason why when we are talking about the human form that we have people who are right-brain dominant and left brain dominant. The left brain represents more of the masculine which actually uses intellect, uses programming and within that it calculates and expresses in that form. The right brain is referred to as being more feminine because of the fact that it is creative, it is bringing in information, consciousness, or whatever it can so that it can express itself in that form. But right now, as many have heard, and many are being exposed to it now, there's lots of conversation and discussion about the left and right brain merging and working in unison.

Because the two operating systems work this way.

People say that we need to be more right-brained because then we are closer to the heart. The right brain itself is the creative part of the brain. It is the part that creates realities. It is the part that creates these realities to be expressed in a physical form...in a physical body.

The operating system of the right brain gets its instructions, gets its knowledge, gets its resources from two places.

One is the soul...and this is why it tunes into the heart because the heart chakra is the portal that connects us to the soul: it's the transmitter/receiver that receives the soul's input. So what happens is that it taps into the soul and basically inquires of the soul what it needs to express itself or play or experience itself in a physical form...because the soul does come onto the planet to experience being in a physical form and to learn from the physical form. So it gets instructions...or taps into what the soul requires.

And it can tap into the soul's knowledge. Because, remember, the soul carries experiences and learning from all the lives...it remembers every single reincarnation, memories, imprints, lessons, the consciousness that it gained from it...all of it...from each and every life.

So when it's tapping into the soul it basically shows everything that it's done, everything that it still needs to do, and also looks at what it can do being in that particular physical form that it was not able to do before. And it considers not only the physical form that it's occupying, but it also considers its position on the planet and even goes one step further and looks at the energies of the planet.

So it streams all this information to the right brain and the right brain starts to utilize the information about what the soul requires, desires or wants to express itself with, and starts to create realities in the right brain. And those realities, that creative part of it, then are shared with the left brain.

But the right brain doesn't stop there because it also accesses the Third Eye. When it's accessing the Third Eye, again, in the beginning when the soul is very immature or basically in a state of a lower enlightenment, the use of the Third Eye is very limited. It is limited in the fact that it doesn't recognize something outside of it. The Third Eye is basically the transmitter/receiver, the access point to connect with other souls on the planet. So that means that it can tap into the other souls' experiences, knowings and so forth. But it also has access to connect with souls that are not even on the planet...which can also be angels, guides and so forth, but can also be other souls that are off-planet and, depending on its operating system or state of consciousness, it can access souls that are on other planets too. In addition, it has access to over-souls, access to the collective consciousness of the planet, it has access to consciousness at a galactic and even a universal level...as well as, of course, access to Source consciousness.

It doesn't mean that it has full reign over all these features, however, because there are certain veils over the Third Eye as well as the Heart Chakra at this point in time that are purposely put there to create certain levels of restrictions so that it doesn't have all the access while it's in its immature state of forgetfulness going through the remembering state.

So the right brain utilizes whatever resources it has access to, creates realities and then streams it to the left brain.

The left brain then starts to express it in a physical form. That means that it starts to create automatic programs...programs for functioning on the planet.

First of all it operates the body. But also, at this point in time, it operates on what we see...for example, we can be someplace and see something...for us to actually see what's there from just a field of energy that has a certain form of consciousness (meaning pure potentiality, pure light that has no form) even though there's co-created form, the left brain has to decipher what it sees to create the illusion of form...what we see as solid, what we see as reality around us. So the left brain does that part, processes that and operates the body.

But it also takes the information from the right brain and starts to express it itself. So it starts to operate within that parameter.

So that's how it works in the left brain.

For most people what happens is that...when a child comes onto the planet it kind of uses both left and right. Both sides are getting used to operating on the planet, and then of course, part of it is pre-programmed before it's born, because when it's in the mother's womb it's already being programmed to some degree. But when we're coming into both the right and left brain, it goes through a whole learning process.

The system that we have here has taken...and that is changing because we already see it...but the systems have been so integrated, in a sense, where it discounted the right brain. So the child, when it comes in, utilizes both the right and left brain and it is later programmed to disregard the right brain and to focus on the left brain. The purpose of that is that if we discount the right then we have less access to resources from the soul and the reason that it's here and it refers to the program.

The program is the conditioning and the programming that we have in the school system...because it is very left brained. There are some courses that will allow you to use your right brain...but, again, the right brain is shaped so that we access only part of it. The creativity that we express, say in art or something of that nature, is to a level right-brain creative, but a lot of it is not...a lot of it is also left-brain created...which the right brain is streaming through but the left brain is taking its own interpretation. When the right brain is fully streaming it creates on a whole completely different level. Its expressions mold itself very easily to whatever the soul needs to experience along the way. So the education system and all the different programs in the world is basically left-brained and basically disregards the right brain. "You can't be creative, you can't use your own initiative and creativity. You need to now be like us." That means that you need to think, feel and respond in this particular way. So now you're programmed to calculate and you're programmed to use the outside world as reference.

And the left brain starts to get programmed. The left brain basically has all the automatic programs, all the automatic responses and so forth. So when you become very left-brained oriented, you basically become almost like a robot, in a sense, because you automatically become a product of responses and programs within the left brain. The right brain, even if it does have an input...and this is why, when we're tuning in, we may have little cues coming from our right brain saying, "OK, the soul wants to do this and we can do it this way." So it gives you a path, for example, "Let's use this." But because the left brain has been so stimulated, so deeply programmed, it says, "No, no, no! Guess what could happen. This could happen...that could happen. We can't do that. We can't go out on a limb. No. Everybody else is doing this over here..." and so it goes on and on and it has a tendency to go back into the default program, and the default program is what it has been programmed to do.

One thing about the left brain (and, of course, the ego operates within that realm), it basically observes other aspects of itself...meaning other physicalities, other people on the planet and sees what everyone else is doing, and then it establishes its programs within that framework. And it doesn't want to go outside that system. And when you're in that lower state of consciousness the left brain actually drives you. And the right brain is discounted.

So part of all this other stuff that's balancing is that now what's being re-activated is to bring the right brain more in line...or on-line...with the left brain so that our experience that we have in the physical form and the way that we see reality and so forth now starts to reflect more and more what is being streamed by the right brain...which is getting resources from the soul and from other resources from other aspects of self.

Now, the other part that's occurring...it's merging the two together so that left and right are no longer separate and disconnected, and it creates a bond of communication so that they work hand in hand. So it switches back and forth. Because what happens is that the left brain also communicates with the right brain in the sense where the left brain will stream its experiences so it actually has access to that part. So, basically, the right brain's creativity comes from resources from the soul, resources from external inputs and access that it can get and also gets input...or feedback, let's call it that...feedback from the left brain because it basically still watches.

And then all of it is streamed back to the soul and the soul starts to use all of whatever it needs to advance itself. So it actually advances itself at the same time it dissolves veils, allowing itself even higher access and it also gives feedback to the right brain. But now the feedback to the right brain is even more expanded and it actually gives not only much more expanded instructions but it also expands the creativity.

And as that is occurring, the right brain's creativity barriers or limitations that were originally there that came in from programming and also from whatever was being streamed from the family dynamic or whoever was accessing those limits that were put in there that said that creativity could go only this far, starts to dissolve the barriers so that the creativity can go even further.

And this is when we're talking about teleportation, we're talking about shapeshifting, we're talking about telekinesis, we're talking about the ability to communicate telepathically and so forth. It has been programmed that we can use those abilities, and so that starts to break down those barriers and those programs start to dissolve so those things then become second-nature. We have the capability to utilize these abilities, it's just that it's been turned off. Part of it was done because we wanted to experience that.

So when the left and right brain are merging they are also upgrading between the two so that the operating systems now work hand in hand. As that is occurring, the other part of it is that it starts to access more of the Third Eye, which is getting resources from other aspects of self and other areas and, of course, the soul. Also, veils are being removed from the Third Eye so we have higher access, and the higher access you have...and there's a purpose behind how much you can access at once. You have to understand...you're just going step by step.

Most of the stuff is expressed in a physical form, but it is also expressed and experienced by the soul. So the soul is going through an enlightenment process and it's going through an awakening process, but it's also going through an expansion process. So it has purposely created these steps to allow it to integrate step by step so that everything is kind of new. But at the same time, during that part of it, it still has veils so that it can't access stuff that it can't handle from the Third Eye. So there are veils on both and they start to dissolve. And they are dissolving and there is a merging and handing-off between the left and right hemispheres of the brain.

So, in a sense, when you're saying, "Well a female operates more right brain and a male is more left-brain," this is where that merging is also merging the two...the male and female. And when we're saying "the two" is just each gender utilizes one side more than the other. Does it mean that one is better than the other? No. Really the outcome that we are looking for at this point in time as a collective is to merge the two so that there is no longer a separation.

So that kind of covers all that part.

The next part, when we go back to looking at 10,000 years ago when the modification occurred, it was very, very integrated in the sense that there was a big modification that occurred where there was not only a separation from one another, then there was a huge separation and encodement of what a male and female gender role would be.

And then the fragmentation continued because as the upgrades went around...you have to understand that an experience as a female doesn't just go with the basic operating system. No matter what culture you are, no matter what religion affiliation you are, what part of the Earth you come onto and what you've been exposed to, it's very different. So a female role or a male role on the planet...if you had to go through it, there are so many variations, and each variation has a whole stream of new programs, rules and so forth on how to function. And a lot of them have also fragmented so that it actually starts to merge between one culture and another culture and so creates a blend...so it actually fragments even more. So that was part of the program that occurred. And that was great because it gave much more variety, much more expression...but also much more limitations. Because when you fragment, you are now an isolated cluster, so you are creating isolated clusters of consciousness.

So with that part of the programming or modification which happened 10,000 years ago, the roles became much more accentuated so the power given to one side or the other and what was actually so deeply ingrained that even the two...For example, at one point, females tended to cluster together, work together and there was an understanding of one another. And the same thing with the masculine: there was an understanding of one another. Even though they were fragmented and created what you could call tribes per se, there was an understanding from it.

And then the changes went even further so that the men and women did not even see eye-to-eye anymore. They didn't even understand each other. There was some form or way of operating within it but it was almost like a struggle and separation between woman to woman and man to man...in the sense that there was not a real understanding. They would be talking a somewhat similar language but, at the same time, they would not understand each other's experience and they would judge each other, and then competition came along. And this is one of the reasons that there is all this competition part of it...you know, who's the strongest, the fittest, who can outwit the other and so forth. So the masculine part is very dominating, fighting, aggressive, conquering, wanting control, survival and all that stuff. Then you take the woman's side of it and even though it's different, in a sense, it's still judging one another, condemning one another, keeping each other in check but at the same time not welcoming each other. So the communal part of it is fragmented too so that they've also isolated themselves. So you can see all of this that had unfolded and with all we've experienced up to now.

And when you look at it and say, "Wow! Look at this magnificent creation and levels, and levels and levels...so you're talking about a very elaborate interconnected video game that we've created, and we've just kept getting more and more elaborate and more and more insanely elaborate and more and more insanely disconnected. But, at the same time, creating such a platform to play and learn within that now we are utilizing all that we've learned, everything that we've experienced, and now that we're going through this whole process of bringing that new operating system in, as a collective, as a whole...and when I'm talking now about the collective, I'm talking about humans...we're looking at something totally amazing of what we can create from here...because of all that has been expressed and experienced so far.

When you're look at the modifications...even what occurred 10,000 years ago... you could look at it in a negative way and say, "Well, if that hadn't happened and if those beings hadn't come along and did that and changed all of this stuff, we wouldn't be in this state right now." True enough, in that regard. But, in actual fact, would we have had as much fun? Would we have had such a great experience in this very polarized expression? Would we have been as disconnected from Source and now, when we reconnect...and when I talk "reconnection" it just tuning back into it because we've always been Source Itself from the beginning and we have never been "outside" of it...but that reconnection, that realization, that reintegrating of that Sourceness coming back in is tremendously much grander and more powerful because of it.

So when we're looking at it from the Source level, it doesn't see chaos. It sees opportunities of expression that really took creativity to the max, in a sense, if you want to look at it that way.

So it's not like sometimes you hear, "Well, it was an experiment that went wrong." It was an experiment that went in directions that weren't quite foreseen and weren't anticipated in one way or another. But, because it went that way and created so many modifications in its own self through the expression...because, you have to understand, as all these fragmentations occurred, the clashing between them actually created more fragmentations. And more fragmentation is actually an opportunity to create even more different experiences.

Antonia

We now have a question from one of our listeners:

“Why would we choose not to have gender in our physicality? In what way would that be more fun?”

So why don't we clarify what is actually meant by neutrality because I think some may perceive that it means no longer being in a male or a female form.

Franco

Being in a neutral state means that basically you are not operating on any specific program. You still come in to a male or female physical gender in the physicality. But what happens is that you are no longer programmed to operate in a certain way, being in a male or female body.

Because up to this point in time, if you came in as a female there was a very strong operating system that had of course been altered along the way but, in a sense, it has evolved in many different directions and has not evolved into, say, achieved higher consciousness within it but there's always the opportunity to learn from it, but it always had a very defined program, a very defined state of operations. If you came into a male physicality you played the male role and whatever that male role represented based on the energies at the time and the collective consciousness and also the cultures that you were coming through the different positioning, and so forth.

So you will still be coming in...in the neutral state you will still be coming in but you are not operating on those rigid restrictions...you are very fluid. And so the representation of a male physicality is one thing but the way you maneuver through it is no longer restricted or defined.

And it also create a completely new opening where it is not so, what you're doing....for example, a man will now come here and just operate within the program: “I am the one who has to provide, strive, struggle. I need to conquer. I need to be the creative one (and when I say “creative” I mean creating mechanically), I need to play all these different roles. I have to be the strong one. I can't be emotional, I can't feel, I can't express. The only emotions I can use are the “manly” ones which are basically anger, resentment and all the big strong ones rather than the soft ones being the other side of it. And love can't be expressed because that's a sign of weakness.” I'm giving you here more of the old, rigid ones.

So instead of expressing itself in that way in a masculine form, if you come in now in a masculine form you now have all the components at your disposal without restrictions. You can feel all parts of it. You are not restricted. Without the limitations you have access to all of it. And within all of it you create something very fluid. So now you can feel the same way a woman would have felt before in a female body. And you can feel as a man. But you can also feel everything in between. And when I say you feel, “like a man or like a woman” I mean that you are not in that old rigid form where you looked one specific way or felt one specific way; instead it brings it all in. So you can come in in a male physicality but you can enjoy all aspects of it. You can be very fluid, very free.

It doesn't mean that if you're a man and all of a sudden you want to start dressing as a woman or vice versa then that's going to be your expression, no; that expression would be more of a personal choice if you wanted to do that.

It's just the fact that you don't have any boundaries. So if you want to be a very nurturing person, then you are. You will notice that there are people like that now: some males that are much softer, much more loving, less rigid and so forth. And you have women who are taking the other side. But they are still adjusting their polarized aspect of it.

So when you get to neutrality, you see both men and women as equal. There's not one better than the other. There's not one program better than the other. And each program accentuates the other in a very natural, very fluid state and both can feel the entire spectrum instead of only one part of the spectrum versus the other.

It is actually much more freeing. And it's much more expressive. And it's much more receiving of experiences through it when you're in that state of neutrality. And within neutrality you have much more freedom to play within an experience even more with that freedom. Because whenever you're not confined you can actually express things much more.

Take someone who's very, very rigid in their belief systems, very rigid in their programming...basically, when they are very rigid they don't have any openings to express anything outside of the range that they've locked themselves inside. So if you take someone who is very, very religious, is not open to spirituality but is open only to the philosophy, the teachings and belief system of one particular religion (whatever that may be), they are not open to explore anything outside of it, and they'll demonize and judge anything that's outside that realm. So you can see that the expression there is limited. Their way of seeing the world and playing in the world. Because if there's a lot of taboos within it (and you can see it within many religions that are much more prominent where you can actually see the different taboos where you can look only a certain way, dress only a certain way, or do whatever it is...and the same thing with men having to play a certain role, who has power over what and all that stuff. But you take somebody who...and I'm not picking on religion...I'm just using that as an example...But if they are in a very rigid state, their way of experiencing things or experiencing life and their expressions are, of course, confined, it's restricted...because it can't express itself.

For example, they may feel that homosexuality is not only taboo, but it is something evil or whatever it is. So now that creates a judgment and it feels uncomfortable within it and, of course, it starts to shut down all the possible playmates, in a sense...and when I say "playmates" it's not in a sexual sense...but in the sense of having possible friends who are expressing in that form. So you can see how it is very restrictive.

But when you go into a state of neutrality....and let's take this from a bigger perspective...then you are free to play with anyone and everyone. You are not restricted from anything so you are going to look at all the different facets of things. And you're going to use your own Inner Guidance much more clearly rather than going into the mind.

If you take someone who is caught up in religion very deeply...and I'm just going to say this without meaning to offend anyone...but as much as they might say that it is very left-brain dominant, that whole experience, because it is all operating on programs...and the internal knowing, intuitiveness (if you want to call it that) is automatically squashed because it automatically has a default within the programming which says that anything outside of this program is evil and it has to be squashed, judged and eliminated and you have to feel bad if you even have that coming in because that cuts everything off. So the soul is saying, "OK, we need to step out of this thing here and let's start taking a look at something outside of this." Then, of course, the right brain is automatically trying to create a reality where it can work on it and step out of it and the left brain is very rigid and saying, "No! Our beliefs are this! God is this man," (or whatever it is). So it is very rigid.

So in a physical expression, say you have a male who comes into the body in a neutral state and it is not confined by any rules or programs about being male. It still has the same functionality as a male...but...it can now feel different.

Say it's in a relationship and it's not dominant in a male program, then it can actually become much more feeling, have much more connection, have much more of bringing other aspects of yourself in. In that case, there is no longer a separation between the two people that are interacting on an intimate level or a non-intimate level, there is a deeper level of understanding, a deeper level of communication, a deeper level of expression between the two. This is what's happening. If you notice people who are awakening and are becoming spiritual, what happens is that their defined roles start to dissolve and they become much more fluid. And they have a different connection.

For example, if you take a man who is deep within the program, a connection with a woman is not on an equal basis, it's more dominating, or more sexual or something because of the programming and how it should be and the connection is more, "these are the roles I need to play."

But when you start to awaken, the connection totally changes. The communication changes. The expression changes. It's completely different.

So that's what we're talking about when we talk about neutrality. It's when you take down all the definitions, when you are basically no longer rigid.

There was a time, and has been a time where that rigidity, that restriction was beneficial...because that's what we wanted to experience. That was an expression that we had chosen as a collective to experience. And that's why it's held on until now.

So the reason that all of this is changing is because we are upgrading everything. We have now had enough of those particular channelled, restricted experiences.

And this is one of the other reasons...and I know I have mentioned this at different times and in different ways of saying it...but we step in and out of the body. For a soul to have variety, it basically had to reincarnate on a very frequent basis because each reincarnation had so many restrictions: energetically first, the state of consciousness second, and also the operating system that it came through. So it would only express and experience itself as much as it possibly could within one incarnation and then it would pull out...so usually they weren't around that long.

And if you notice back...sometimes people say, "It's our medical system: this is why people are living longer. It's because of our health care." In actual fact, that's not true at all. The health care system has had a very low contribution to our longevity. In actual fact, if you had to look at our health care now in comparison to even before health care even existed in the form that it does now, we were better off before than we are now. (laughs) Because the environment that we are being intoxicated with now is thousands of times over anything that we've experienced before. And it's coming from all different levels. So it's not really the health care.

What's happened is that there's been a little bit more flexibility within our expression and experience. So the soul has been able to get a little bit more variety in one body longer enough so that it actually stayed here long enough. Plus it's picking up some of the higher vibrations coming through and was able to express and experience itself a little bit more. That's really what the main difference is. Every little part plays a role, but all are integrated anyway.

So when we are going into a state of neutrality, you've basically no longer confined yourself to an incarnation. That means that if you came in in a male physicality through a certain specific culture and so forth, you would use it as an entry point, expression, experience and so forth whatever you chose at that point in time...but, of course, in a state of neutrality you would now automatically be able to access much more. So it gives the soul much, much more variety to express and experience itself so it actually does not need to step in and out of a physicality as much. It doesn't have to keep re-incarnating for variety. It can create variety in a much more expanded state in just one incarnation...which would have taken four, five, ten, twenty incarnations before. Now you can do it on only one.

And this is one of the reasons that with the changes and as our consciousness is shifting now...as the energies are shifting...that our bodies will not deteriorate and need to step out as often. You will be able to access even to a point where you can go back to the natural design where you can actually live 1,000 years in one body because now the soul is basically not confined any longer by the operating system to the degree it was before so it can create much more variety. And that is through neutrality.

It always goes back to that: to neutrality. So neutrality is much more expansive.

It's not that I don't experience extremities...because you can experience extremities of any experience or the intensity of any experience...so if you want to have drama, you can have drama to the max. But you're not going to be driven by drama. You can experience it, then the moment you've gotten everything you wanted out of the drama, it's gone! Very simply. You're not driven by it. So if you want to have a very holistic, very quiet, playful, or whatever it is...you're going to experience that fully. And when you want to change it, you change it. It's very easy.

Up to this point in time it's been very difficult. If you're caught up in a program of drama, drama was tough to get out of and you fed off it and there was all the control structures within it and all the beautiful playmates that continued to stream it so that you were caught into it very deeply. So it was very, very difficult to get out of.

But now it's not. In a state of neutrality you can have all of it. You're not restricted any more. You're not polarized at all. You're not bound by karma because basically you no longer need variety of the incarnational aspect; variety is all created moment by moment. That's the beauty of it.

And in neutrality, you're in the moment.

When you're not in neutrality each time you have an old activation, you're now shifting out of the moment and you're going back into the past. For example, you trigger a dramatic aspect of your experience (anger or whatever it is) and it relates to something that you've experienced before...because every time it's triggered, you're going back to that state of consciousness, you're going back to that vibration, you're going back to...guess what...you're going back to that old part of you or that old expression. So you're not in the moment...you're going back to the past each and every time.

This is one of the reasons that we're purging and clearing so that we don't end up being dragged through the old programs and the old states of being. Because the ego is very good at that. The ego basically keeps referring to the past to project a future. And that's the other part that's shifting too...its role. Because in neutrality it no longer needs to play the role that it's been playing up to this point in time.

Hopefully that explains what neutrality is about.

Neutrality is huge and it is much grander in the sense of experiencing.

I know that a lot of times people think that, "Well, with neutrality life's not going to be fun." In actual fact, life truly starts to be fun in neutrality.

How many times people have said that they are going through patterns, repetitive patterns of fears, addictions, you name it. And you could turn around to them and say, "Wow! You are creating such intensity, such beautiful expressions and so forth." And they respond, "I'm not having any fun! I'm tired of this! I don't want any part of this any longer! I'm stuck in this pattern and I can't get out of it! I'm not having any fun!" So if you're looking at it and saying, "Well if I'm stuck in a polarized world I'm going to have much more fun," really, you can have fun to a certain degree but that fun gets limited.

But in neutrality if you want to have that experience you step into it...and step back out. You express and experience it fully and then it's done. Very easily.

Antonia

Absolutely.

We have another question as follows:

"I have noticed especially in my own cultural heritage (East Indian) that many of the old patriarchal programs are being enforced by the matriarchs in the family towards the younger female generation, leading to a suppression of their expression of their inherent freedoms. And it is often glorified in our cultural TV shows and movies. How can we best serve to clear this patterning in ourselves and in our families?"

That's a great question. Indeed that pattern exists in most societies. So let's take a look at that, Franco.

Franco

Well, there's two parts to that.

The first part is that the reason that it's being enforced is to really allow the souls and also the people and the children coming through to feel that intensity of confinement. And then to make a choice. And when I say "make a choice" it's getting to a point where they say, "I'm not going to participate in this," and then step out of it. So it is actually allowing the souls to create the last bit of completion of learning and expressing and experiencing itself in that density. So that's the first part.

The second part is that looking at it from the collective...the reason that it's being pushed is because there's a level of fear. And the first part of that is one of the things I find when I'm working with people...one of the things about letting go of traditions or letting go of patterns, is that there's a fear of a realization that they were wrong. There's a fear that somehow, "I never had it right in the first place and now I have to look at myself." Again, that's a program on a program but, at the same time, that's one of the things.

The other thing is that there's another part attached to it saying, "Well, if I do not indoctrinate my children coming through and restrict them, then it's a reflection on me. And that reflection of me is going to be looked at by the collective people within the community (or culture or whatever it is) and they are going to judge me and then I'm going to look bad," and so forth.

So all these past massive intensities that are coming through right now are forcing people and molding people are going to bring people to the brink of saying, "OK, enough! No more!"

One of the most powerful states to assist that is to create the neutral state in yourself. In a family dynamic, if someone is in a neutral state and sees the pattern but you now reflect that neutrality...and when I say "neutrality", I mean that you are outside of the confines of the programs and restrictions that they have. So whatever they are trying to indoctrinate, you are not reflecting that indoctrination. At this point, you are basically being you. Being that expressive you, that you that is free...free from the indoctrination. You may not be totally free because there are still other levels of programming that exist, but free enough to where you're in a neutral state so you're not seeing a "right" or "wrong" about any of it.

When you're in their space, their energy, or the frequency of the people who are there gathering in a family way, you are now being different, you are now being yourself. And you're not going to say, "Well, no, I don't believe in all that stuff and I don't want any part of it!" You now express and say, "Well, that may be fine for you, but, at this point in time, I feel that I want to be out of those confines. And I'm going to be that way."

And by being yourself, there is that "opposite" side, if you want to call it that, represented...so you're being the example, in a sense, of being outside of that mindset. You're still part of the culture but you're outside of that mindset and you're out of that programming. And others will observe that.

But at this point in time, just be who you are and other souls will be able to pick up on that wherever they are at and step out of it. So if they are going to get indoctrinated, it's going to be temporary.

You have to understand...especially the children. Children are already coming onto this planet already encoded outside of the program. They may take on the program temporarily to complete whatever they need to complete but...

You have to understand...I say the souls are coming here to come and play, come here to experience itself through play, comes here to learn through the play and experience, and comes here to enlighten. That's one part.

The other part is that basically the soul comes here to create completion: completion of polarity and completion of all the old programs. But it also wants to express itself through the version of change...or what we call the path of change.

So the souls that are here...and this is why it is so exciting to be on the planet...or any planet that's going through a major transformation...is because you can achieve tremendous amounts while here. So these souls that are coming in are really wrapping up some old stuff that they may take on. Because you will notice that as much as they may be indoctrinated, it will not stick...because as we move forward it will be very easy to step out of it.

It's like you can talk me into putting the garment on. And I'll put it on because I want to see how it fits. But the moment that I see that I don't have to wear this garment...that tight garment, or whatever it may be...I'm just giving you an analogy...then I can take it off. And it won't be so rigid to take it off.

Now you take somebody that's been here longer and has lived the indoctrination for a long time...say, a parent or someone who has been on the planet for a while...will have a more difficult time of letting go...letting go of old patterns, letting go of traditions, letting go of things they defined themselves with. It will be harder for them to do so. Eventually they will...or will not. And, if not, then, of course, they will not want to participate on the planet for very much longer.

So as much as some children are going into it and getting caught up in it, you will notice that as things increase more and more will break out of it anyway, and it will be very easy for them. It will be like dropping a hot potato. They won't be too excited about holding onto it. Especially when they start getting a taste of the energetic freedom they have and also when they are able to see, "Wait a minute! I'm in a box! And, really, I don't fit in this box any longer. I agreed to step into the box to see how it feels to be in the box. But now I want to get out."

So if you're out of it...if you're out of the box...then just be that around them. If you're working with them, don't contradict what they know. Just show them that there are other possibilities and that there's nothing wrong with other possibilities. But it's up to them...whatever feels natural for them. Just guide them to really tune into themselves. For example, if you're having a conversation with someone who's been indoctrinated, you might say, "Well, how does it feel for you to do that?" and play with that part of it. And if they say something like, "Well, Mom wants me to do this, and these other people are telling me to do that," then you might respond with, "Well, it's fine that they tell you what to do, but it's really up to you as to whether or not you want to play with that. Even if you want to play with it, there's nothing wrong with it. However, always know that you have the freedom to make a different choice. Just because you were born into that culture and they have those beliefs, you are still here to be yourself. And yourself may not be one who is caught up in those beliefs. So you have the freedom to change." Always remind them of their opportunity to make a different choice.

And you'll notice that you have opened up because then they will evaluate and become the observer of both. They'll observe their culture but they'll also observe the people who are not in their culture. And through that observation they will be able to feel a bit more of what one experience looks like and feels like versus the other experience. And then they can make a choice saying, "OK, this is what I want to be experiencing." And they might even create something in between. And that variation in between will change and will alter accordingly.

So if you're working with people who are locked up in that, show them that there's other possibilities. Don't dictate that, "No! You don't need to do this!" Just say, "OK, that's one way that your culture has learned. But we have other opportunities and a lot more freedom to do so." So you basically stimulate their own creativity, their own observer state and you stimulate their own internal guidance.

Antonia

OK, our last question is as follows:

“Where do transgender people fit into this? I was born female but am now considered male, however in the last year I decided that I really don’t care either way. I’m just wondering if the ‘trans’ or ‘gender neutral’ phenomenon is happening because people want to balance the feminine and masculine or is it just another path to awaken?”

Franco

Well both, actually. It’s a completion of both and wanting to experience one side and then the other. And the other part is, yes, going through the neutrality aspect of it, really. Because it really doesn’t matter.

The point is, if you say, “I’m a woman. So I need to be a woman and I have to express myself as a woman. I need to dress as a woman and I need to do all this stuff as a woman.” So you are expressing one limited channel. Then if you switch over to masculine and say, “Well, I need to be like a man. I have to dress like a man and I have to do this and that.” So you’ve switched from one to the other. You’re still in the same body or perhaps even gone through an operation...or whatever....but again, you’re just going from one side to the other and you’re still defining yourself one way or the other.

When you become neutral within, it doesn’t matter. You might have a male physicality but you’re not bound by the male physicality any longer...or you are no longer bound by the female physicality...you can basically express and experience all parts of it and you don’t have it represented by the fact that, “I now have to dress a certain way,” or “I need to have a sex change,” or something of that nature. But it’s all perfect.

Every expression is perfect. People ask me, “Well, what do you think of transgender?” or “What do you think of homosexuals?” or whatever. They are all beautiful expressions. There’s no right or wrong, good or bad about any of it. It’s all perfect.

However, if you’re going through that, it becomes much more open, much more free as you get neutral within that.

So that was great that you went from one expression to the other and now it doesn’t really matter. That’s where you’re getting into an awakened state. So that’s an indicator right there. Because it really doesn’t matter.

Once you are in a much more awakened state, once you have gone through a shifting, you don’t really look at it that way. It doesn’t really matter. Many express fully 100% whatever they choose along the way, it doesn’t matter what gender they have because their gender does not define them.

Somebody might say, “Well, I want to be a woman because I want to feel like a woman, I want to act like a woman and I want to understand what a woman’s like. They might be a male gender physicality but they might say they want to do that. So now they need to go through the whole process of becoming a woman so that now they can experience themselves on the other side, and then play with a man or something of that nature. So they could go ahead and do that, but then the next step...and not that there's anything wrong with that...in fact, that's beautiful because that was a necessary part of the expression anyway to experience that.

But when they are in the neutral state and have activated all parts of themselves, if they are in a male physicality they can now tune in so now they can understand a woman even though they are in a male physicality. And now they can have a different connection man-to-man, and can have a different connection male to female...because the male and female will not be role-oriented and it won't be separated or divided. There will be an understanding of both of them together. So it's a whole different connection altogether.

And there is a very powerful intimacy involved in it too because they are not polarized expressions in that a male acts one way and the female acts another way. So when they are having sex or something like that they are still role playing and this is one of the reasons that the connections are very different.

But when you have people start to awaken at the level of neutrality, even at the expression of having sex or making love or whatever it is, it's completely different because now there's a huge powerful merging, a level of feeling for one another, and an understanding of one another that is no longer a physical action, an isolated thought, a sensorial experience. It is an encompassing sensorial experience that brings in every facet, including the energies of Essence. So now it's a soul-to-soul connection at the same time within all of it. So it brings in all parts of it.

So when you go from one to the other and then you go into neutrality...in neutrality it doesn't matter...all of it is just play. You can play with it but you don't define yourself as one or the other.

And you don't have to enforce anything saying, "Well, I'm this!" You don't say that. It's just like, "Oh, this is what I'm playing right now. I'm not this. I'm not male, I'm not female, I'm not whatever. I might be in one physicality versus the other, but it doesn't matter." It really doesn't matter.

It's very different.

So is there anything more you would like to add in closing, Franco?

Franco

Yes. This is a very broad topic and we could spend an entire day on it alone. Every subject is so expansive. I glossed over a lot of it because sometimes it's too much overload and you don't really need to know everything.

But it's good to have a good foundational understanding because as we start to see and feel changes within ourselves, at least we have a conscious understanding of what's really happening. And a lot of times we reflect that, "I don't understand what's going on. I feel this way. I feel that way. Something's wrong with me," or whatever. And then the automatic program may go, "Oh, there's something wrong with you," and then you shut down. So by having information and by having an understanding...but, really, this only stimulates what everybody already knows within themselves to a degree.

Sometimes we say, "Does it resonate with you?" Really it's only matching what you already know inside. Some people might say, "Well, it doesn't resonate with me." It's just that that part of them is not accessible...yet. But the imprint is put in there and eventually becomes accessible along the way.

In Part Two of this topic (which we will do on December 18, 2013) is we will do the Meditation/Activation energy work and also a Clearing of programs within it. So we're going to stimulate the transition authority happening. We're also going to accentuate some of the clearing process so that we can remove certain things so that we can expedite the process. We're never going to supersede the soul's desire, but we're going to accentuate what the soul is having a challenge achieving on its own.

This is one of the things that's so powerful about the Clearing: the fact that you're being a part of it, you're going to get exactly what you need. And the reason you're being part of it is because your soul wants to be part of it. Basically it may have certain challenges because of the mindset, program or whatever else is going on energetically or otherwise that is causing the soul itself to have a challenge in making a shift within itself. It has its direction that it wants to go. It says, "OK, I want to clear all this stuff." But it may still be challenged because it's working with the outside environment. So when that happens you co-create an opportunity. So all of a sudden you get an invitation...or you're on this call and you say, "Oh, yeah. I'm going to listen to that call." But the reason you're going onto the call is because your soul is saying, "Yeah, there's something we can do in that call, especially the Meditation/Activation. We're going to be able to access something that we're having a bit of a challenge with, so let's go there." Nevertheless, the soul still navigates how much it allows to unfold within itself. So it will utilize...

First of all it will take everything in. It will take all the codes in, it will take all the energies in and it will leave the imprint...fully. Then it will automatically utilize it along the way as it provides completion.

So if somebody turns around and says to me, "Well, I did the Meditation and I had some changes but I don't have all of them." You have to understand...the soul is still navigating through it. The soul has taken it all in but has said, "Well, we still have some stuff that we need to do. As much as I want to step forward further, I'm only going to allow so much because you need to create some completion experiences." So it will do that. That means that if it has to go further down the polarized world for a little while in certain areas, it will allow it. But already the openings that you have made will allow you to play much more clearly, much more freely in those experiences so that you can actually get them wrapped up faster.

But when you replay the Meditation/Activation and listen to it again at a later date, it chips away some more because with that extra freedom that you gained from the first time, you managed to get a few other things done, so now you're ready for the next level. And when you do that, you go to the next level. And then you listen again and some other point and then it goes to the next level.

I've had some people say, "Well, I've listened to it so many times, but now I can see the bigger changes." You will always have changes of some sort even listening only one time, but with repetitions, the changes get bigger.

Others who listen the first time around, their soul is in such a state of readiness and ready to utilize most of the codes...or a larger number of them...they will create a huge transformation in just one Clearing. And I've had people who turn around and say, "Wow!!! My world changed! Everything is different! I'm having a completely renewed way of experiencing and playing in life now!"

So, really, it's up to the soul. But the fact that you get it handed over to you and you're on the call or somebody gives you the link later or something of that nature, the only reason that it's in your presence is because your soul has said, "OK, we need to have this tool that's being presented."

Now the only reason I exist on the planet, the only reason that a lot of this stuff is streaming through is because there's a call for it. It's not me. The stuff is not just flowing because of the sake of me blowing in the wind or any other soul who came on the planet to do this is not just blowing in the wind. It said, "Come on, we need somebody to come and challenge us. We need you to stream this to create the big picture for us to utilize. We already know it inside of us but we can't yet fully access it. So by you stimulating it, we can move forward.

So the existence of all of this and the stuff that we're creating, as you know, Antonia, we never know what the next topic is going to be. It shows up for us because it is what the collective group is saying, "OK, this is what we need next. This time we need feminine and masculine balancing to neutrality, so that's what we created tonight. So each topic is created according to the request of the collective, at the soul level.
