

RELEASING THE ILLUSION OF AUTHORITY

Group Teaching
November 2012

Antonia

This (teaching) is about releasing the illusion of authority. One of the earliest belief systems that gets programmed into us is compliance with authority. It starts at a very young age with, obviously, our parents, but it grows quickly from there on. (It's important to release the illusion of authority) and empower your own inner guidance, especially right now when there are so many changes happening in the world. It's going to be very important for people to start standing up to (this illusion of authority) and start honoring the voice that we have within us.

Franco

Yes. (Releasing this illusion of authority) is something that will empower us to move forward. As long as that is in place, it is a huge obstacle. It's like a big ball and chain hanging from us that slows us down from moving forward. So it is very limiting and is something that has to be addressed, particularly at this time.

Antonia

And with everything happening the world over and people starting to wake up faster and faster and seeing things...whether it's what's happening in the money system, what's happening in the education system, what's happening in the medical system, the governmental systems....and that's one thing...as people get to wake up to the illusions, to the deceit that has been happening for so many years then, it's like you said (Franco), it's about remembering that we are One and also remembering the power that has been given to us. And being able to stand up and say, "No! We are now choosing to go forward and claim the world!" And we will see more and more of that happening as the frequency changes and we move past December (2012).

But there is still a lot of fear of authority. And it's really an old program of compliance to just automatically follow whatever you've been told. And, initially, it's there at a young age for obviously your protection...if your mother tells you the stove is hot, don't touch, then obviously that's done with love. But very quickly we are programmed....you know, we've talked a lot in previous seminars about having these “boxes”. There’s the box of coming into the world, then we get programmed into assuming male or female roles, then we get programmed with school, whether you have been in a church or synagogue, or a mosque or what have you...we have all these old rules of what can and can’t be done. And then, of course, there are the government rules, the police authority, or what have you.

And a lot of authority has been mixed with fear...fear of saying what’s in our hearts, fear of acting in a way that feels good for us. And as we move forward through 2012, and especially into 2013, what we need more and more is us uniting and firmly, with confidence, stating our beliefs, and firmly, with confidence, saying, “It’s time to change the world!”

And that all happens with us clearing this hold that (this illusion) has had on us. And it’s a hold that we’ve allowed and we’ve all agreed to at one point. But now it’s time to say, “You know what? This is really old, archaic energy and belief systems,” and release it.

Franco

Yes. You made a very good point about it being “old.” In actual fact, it starts way, way, way beyond coming onto the planet because this (illusion of) authority has been playing out for the last 10,000 years in these physical bodies. But when we look beyond that...I mean, the authority aspects of creators being created and all that stuff...has been around for millions of years. And as we have gone through the evolutionary process in all the different realms and so forth, that authority and power dissipates, and this is one of the things that is happening here. When we actually look at the whole for what it is, there is no hierarchy, there is no authority over anything.

And, like you were saying, we are doing (this transformation) all together...we are all One. And when we bring many together (to do a group clearing), the power or the capability to transform...because this is not only personal transformation that we are doing for ourselves...yes, it is...but this affects us very much more powerfully than that. Because, realistically, what we’re affecting is all our family dynamics, we’re affecting our community, we’re affecting the region that we’re living in, and we’re affecting further and further until it affects the whole planet. But then it also affects our particular solar system, and on into our galaxy, and so forth.

But at this point in time, the key factor is the transformation that we are doing here. So as we are doing this together, we are also re-writing the codes...not only in our DNA but the DNA of the planet and the DNA of everything. So this is a very powerful exercise, process, and so forth.

Antonia

You know, this is such a large topic that we might have to have a couple of different (teachings) addressing different aspects of it.

Fear of authority is such a long-ago instilled program within the human psyche, within the human belief system. It is so vast....so let's just start. It's a really deep, old one so I think we are going to have at least two or three (teachings) on this.

So, Franco, why don't we start with at one point there was something other than "authority." At one point there was guidance, there was quality, and there was contribution, and then we agreed to experience separation. And one way we kept separated was through authority because it brought out the "better than" and "less than" and those that "know more" and "know less," and that then started the era of authority, the area of...really...slavery, separation, and darkness.

And we are coming towards the end of that era right now with specifically this change. People are waking up. But this one is still an old one that needs assistance because we need to shed light on it and we need to wake people up.

So let start looking at....you know, before authority we were in a state of...and I almost want to say "communion." A state of where one had a thought and it was all shared and we all knew. If something needed to be done then it got done because people organized themselves to get it done. And it is so opposite to what we now know in humanity and it can be difficult to explain. So why don't we start with that and then from there we can work on these "boxes" of authority that we've agreed to be put in, but which is now coming to an end.

Franco

Yes, exactly. From it's original design...Let's go back and we can touch upon it and play with it more later...but if we go back to Source itself...when Source itself decided that (and we are all part of Source, of course)...but when we decided, as Source itself, to have a more expanded experience and to really discover Its capability and also to enhance Itself...when It fragmented Itself, when It created all these other facets of Itself and extensions of Self...It realized that as It was doing so, I mean, it was all done equally. There was no Creator to the created...all of it was the same. I mean, the Creator itself is Its own creation. And as it fragmented and so forth, it created equals.

But the whole purpose of the fragmentation was to have a multitude of experiences...not only individualized, but It fragmented Itself so that each fragment can actually enhance and play with one another. Therefore it actually created an experience where there was no "one better than another," but it was an equal seeing of Itself. But each facet of Itself had just a slightly different encodement so that it would have a slightly different perceptual experience so that it could have a variety of different experiences.

But, again, there was always at its core...and still today...at its core, Who We Truly Are is all of the same energy, the same consciousness, the same essence. Everything is the same. Equal. There never has been hierarchy, there has never been different levels of essence of one being higher than another. All that has existed as it has been fragmented, as it went out to play, is just different facets working at slightly different frequencies, having different experiences, and at the same time enhancing each other.

Like you were saying, Antonia, we came here to participate. Because, the thing is, from this natural design, knowing that each one of us is here to have our own individualized experience (because that's part of the process), but this individualized experience is enhanced by each other. And each other is facilitating that playfulness, that creativity, and so forth.

But it was always shared. There was never (like you were saying), "I've now discovered something." So a part of me discovered something and now it's just retaining it for itself and not allowing it for others. That's something that's been adopted and that's what we've been playing with as part of our polarity world and part of our separation world.

But without that...looking at without that implementation that came into place...whatever one facet of Itself discovered, it automatically made it available to all other aspects of Itself. So that each other aspect of Itself can take that...not to take it on as, "I need to duplicate it." No. It was only to give them an opportunity to go, "Oh, OK. This has been experienced in this facet so now I can take it and experience it with my own frequency, my own encodement, and actually accentuate it."

Right now, as you may have noticed, a lot of my meditations encodes the fact that we are taking consciousness from the air...vibrations from the air...which we take in and we are sharing amongst each other...each one of us...and so we accentuate it. And that's how it was done. So that knowledge, experience, the creativity and self-discovery that was coming about was shared equally so that each one could go further.

So we did not, "reinventing the wheel" over and over again sort of thing, just as an analogy. Or the fact that, "Now I've discovered it, now everybody else has to figure it out their way," type of thing...and slow down the process. The process was very easy and flowing. And the worlds that were created, the playgrounds reflected that...the animal kingdom, everything...reflected that at that point in time when this original design came in.

It was later on that these changes started to come into place and then ego started to become a factor that was being utilized. And, again, this was an agreement, it was an experiment to experience something differently. And I am talking about this before even talking about planet Earth. Because planet Earth is only one amongst many, many, many playgrounds and these human physicalities are only one amongst many, many, many different forms of physicalities on these playgrounds anyway...This is all before that.

And then when that started to come into place, then, of course, a sense of separation started to come in, a sense of empowerment over the "other." And this is where authority and hierarchy all that stuff started to come into place afterwards. Again, it was part of the separation when the separation aspect of it was created. And that was again to create a massive amount of polarity within Itself and to create a different experiential environment.

Now as much as that has slowed down the process of growth and created a huge obstacle for many, it has also carried a certain level of perfection in it because, through this, we were able to really experience the opposite of our True Nature...the opposite of Nature experiencing Itself. Because even in Its fragmentation It always felt whole with all of It, and It always communed with all of It...all of It was One anyway. But when that separation, that isolation, that, again, was an encodement that was put in where we now felt the separation and could acknowledge it...that's when everything else came into play.

So when we're looking back at our natural design, we started off never having that. Then along the way, as other aspects of ourselves got to a certain level of consciousness and enlightenment where they...again, they are all facets of us...when I say "they," it's just another facet of ourselves...had come to the point where they could see that they were also capable of creating. So they went out and started to create more worlds, created more physicalities, creating more opportunities for fragmentation, and experimentation, and expansion, and so forth. (Should this be identified here as The Luciferian Experiment???) So they created more and more playgrounds, more and more physicalities to experience themselves. And then take in the knowledge of that.

And then at some point in time, because of the separation aspects and the ego aspects that were being used at that time, then more and more of this authoritative stuff started to come in and hierarchy started to come in where they were saying, "Well now, I am your master because I created you." Now that was only because it had lost touch with its True Essence. When the mind (that was projecting and creating these playgrounds), at that point in time was still seeing itself as somewhat superior or separate from its Essence. Because once that was taken out of the equation for a period of time....because, the thing is, the moment we connect with our True Essence, the Source Essence within ourself, you automatically...all this authoritative stuff, all this stuff about hierarchy, or one better than the other, or anything of that nature...dissolves...completely. It doesn't even exist. You can't even comprehend it, you can't even put any power in it whatsoever.

It's like when we have that moment of re-connection to Source itself in its most purest state...the connection is always there, but when we actually access it (and we're not going through filters)...we see that all there is, is Love. That's all we see in everything and that profound feeling of it is very, very powerful. And you don't see separation but rather you see the beauty in each facet of Itself, and the beautiful dance that's happening. And all you have is LOVE for each aspect of yourself.

And with that LOVE you provide the environment for them to flourish. Because as "they" (the other facets of you) flourish, YOU flourish! Because you are the other facets too! The whole flourishes because it is Source itself.

So whenever that (i.e. Love) comes into play, then none of that other stuff (i.e. duality, authority, hierarchy, etc) exists.

So while we've been playing in this separation, while we've been playing with that, that's how the hierarchy, authority, and who's better than who, and who should command over others, or the desire to have power over others...these are all part of separation...these are all part of the lower frequencies...that we've allowed to take form, that we've allowed to come through us because we really wanted to experience...not only a level of polarity, but a level of separation from Source itself! This was to show us when we got ready...when we got ready to step back into it (i.e. Oneness) there is not only a higher appreciation for it but it is also a very powerful ...what can I call it?... (some people call it ascension)...but it's more like a very powerful "reunification." But then that level of creation that is established and the knowing of Itself is greatly expanded more than ever before.

So when we look back at that, when we look right at Source itself and Who We Truly Are within ourselves, then none of this power, control, competition, and all of that stuff does not exist...or having authority over others, or power over others. However, because of that opening that we've created where we wanted to have that experience, then that came into play.

However, we are getting to a point right now...and this has been coming for a while...that we are now shifting out of that. We are shifting and going back to our natural state where we are now back to our Original Design, where there is no power over one another. It is about allowing each aspect of ourselves to have their very particular experience and we now start working and seeing that, "I'm not better than them. I don't have power over them nor do they have power over me." But rather allowing each soul to have their beautiful experience and we just provide for one another....because we are all assisting each other...providing one another with a higher level of consciousness...or whatever we can share energetically and otherwise...with great Love...without taking anything away from them...so we can all move forward. So we help them dissolve a lot of the barriers so that they can move forward.

So, with that, we bring ourselves back to our natural design...and with “natural design” I’m not talking about the human physicality, but rather the natural design of the soul itself...back to that unification...back to “knowing” that it’s One with all.

And this is happening universally. This is not isolated just to our human experience. This is happening universally, And there are playgrounds and beings on the planet...and other planets too...that have already gotten to that point. And for them to observe the journey that we are going through, they see with great love that we are still “behind” and that we are moving forward now at such a rapid rate.

So this is also within the religious affiliation...they have always created this “separation”...enhanced separation...by creating a deity...which, again, is a manifested deity...a deity that has “authority” over us...that has “power” over us...that we need to pray to, that we need to honor, that we need to somehow give blessings and so forth because this is “expected” of us. And then, again, we are looking at now we have to appease something bigger than us, greater than us, something that has power over us and can actually choose the direction of where we are going to go. So the religions have created that just to create and support separation where here we are, lowly beings trying to earn its wings to even be affiliated with these deities and so forth. So that’s another level where we’ve had authority. And, the thing is, it had power over us.

You see, when we understand this whole thing about authority, every time we get the opportunity to experience something having power over us, we have a tendency to slip into this thing called “victim.”

For example, even in the simplistic example of our parents...now we are automatically programmed that our parents have authority over us. So, at that point in time, we are now no longer free, no longer able to be ourselves. Yes, we have a desire to express our uniqueness and our beingness but, at the same time, we now need to follow what Mom and Dad say. And, through the fact that we are giving ourselves the opportunity to be subject to the authority of our parents, then we are somewhat feeling as a victim that, “I have no say here. My parents really dictate how my life’s going to look.”

But when you really, truly understand it...our True Essence (no matter what roles our parents are playing) is that we are still in charge of our experience.

But we have the “illusion”...and that’s why the name of this subject is appropriate...the “illusion” of authority...because it is exactly that! It is an illusion! We believe that they have authority over us. And it represents that way because of the fact of how it’s played out.

So this extends further. Then we have the idea of a sense of “responsibility.” So when we think that we are responsible for someone, then we think that we have to have authority over them. And so even with structures like the police department and government, then that’s how authority comes in and, “We are the authorities and we tell you how to live your life,” because they take on the responsibility that you are not able to experience life as your own and so on and so forth and so they play a very specific role in that regard. However, what that plays out is, again, we take ourselves out and we become...in most cases...the “victim.”

And it goes on the other way around. Because the moment that we have someone “under” us (or at least the illusion of someone under us) or the fact that we have our own children, now we feel that we need to have the authority and the responsibility for them.

And this just goes on and on and on.

And also, the other part of it too...and this is something fairly new now that people have been feeling specifically...and it’s just a state that we’re stepping in to...and you know we’ve talked about this, Antonia, and we’ve been saying that ultimately our soul dictates our journey...then all of a sudden we feel like we are a victim to our soul and that our soul has authority over us!

When we really, truly understand, as much as our soul is dictating our journey, in actual fact, Who We Really Are is the soul having a human experience. Now the only thing the soul is doing is that it’s doing its best to utilize this physicality and the mind computer so that it can have a very specific experience of its own design and of its own capability of having whatever it’s choosing to experience in this lifetime and learn from it.

But we are never a victim! Because that’s an illusion that the mind creates!

And this is what’s been coming up now...it’s like, “Well, I don’t have any power or control over my journey. I’m basically a victim to my soul and my soul dictates where I need to go.” But that’s just the ego mind that’s creating that story. In actual fact, we are here to work in a unified fashion with mind, body and soul.

The physicality has its existence because the soul has chosen to take this vehicle. So the soul is actually just driving and navigating the experience. But we are learning together. And we are in the physicality for the purpose of what the soul has come here to do. And the soul is actually a facet of Source itself that came here to have this particular experience. And so it’s like the car having authority over the driver. In actual fact, the driver is the one with the authority...but it’s not even authority, it’s more like, “I’m utilizing it.” “I’m utilizing it and I’m here to drive it to take me through this experience...wherever that’s going to be...wherever the soul has chosen.”

So we need to understand that we don't have to get engaged in that aspect of it where we feel that our soul has authority over us.

In actual fact, there is no separation between soul, mind, body, or anything of that nature. That's again another illusion and fragmentation that has occurred. In actual fact, it's all one unit working together.

And that is the first unification that occurs when we are in a physical form...is to keep that all in alignment.

Specifically now, what's happening at this point in time is that we are awakening. As you were saying, Antonia, we are awakening and we are starting to notice a lot of things that have not been "correct," that have not been truthful, that have been deceptive and things of that nature. And as much as that has played out ...and has served us...and has given us a certain series of experiences...we've gotten to a point where we've...in this case..."outgrown" that experience. And it's time to shift.

Now this shifting is not just our own personal shifting of what we could call an "isolated" aspect of Source itself (or our particular soul)...this shifting is a galactic shifting of souls! So we are choosing to step out of that because we've had enough of that experience.

So as these things are coming up, as we are realizing all these barriers and all these untruths and so forth that is going on...yes, the first thing that we feel is that we are a victim, that we've been taken advantage of, that we're disempowered, and so forth. But at the same time, we feel that we are powerless to step out of it. And, of course, these structures around us project the illusion that they have authority over us.

So as we are awakening and becoming more conscious of what is playing out, the key that we have to realize is that really, *nothing has authority over us!

We are still ultimately in charge of our own experience and our collective souls coming together are in charge of our journey on the planet together and also all the changes that are taking form.

So at that point in time, as we are going through this now, we start to realize that we are ultimately in charge of what direction we are going to go. So it doesn't matter what's being dictated...what looks like the illusion being forced on us...and, of course, the structures are creating the illusion that they have power over us, that they can create pain and suffering and other experiences that we may not enjoy if we don't follow their rulings...and so on and so forth.

What we're going to notice as we're going through that is we will come to the realization that, "No, they do not have power over me! These facets of me are playing a specific role and the specific role that they are playing is for me to discover that I am ultimately in charge of my journey because as much as I am Source itself having a fragmented experience of Self, I am here to empower not only my personal journey but also empower the Whole at the same time through this path. So that, ultimately, I am in charge of how I want to experience it!" And we're not talking just at the mind level here because that plays only a small role, it is at the soul level. So, at the soul level, this is what it experiences.

So as any authoritative figures come along and structures saying, "You have no choice. This is what you need to do," with your self-realization you are able to look at it and say, "Do I choose to cooperate in this old energy, this old hierarchy, this structure of being a victim or being controlled by something that presents the illusion that they are commander-in-chief of all of us or that they have power over us? Or do I choose now to step outside of that and say, 'No, we're not playing with this any longer. We are not going to feel subordinate or feel submissive to the authority and the controls around us. We are choosing now to enhance and change our experience and to unify so that we are no longer feeling that we are being dictated and limited. We are choosing to be truly our Essence, truly ourselves and allowing all of that to be presented in a very open, clear state of being.'"

This is where it becomes very powerful. This is where we find ourselves stepping out of.

You know, when we look at it, this whole thing of authority has been around in the human aspect of it for 10,000 years. For 10,000 years we have been incarnating, re-incarnating, always coming in...either we are the one that's a dictator or the one being dictated to, either we are the authority or we are the one under submission and having the authority over us. So this has been going on for thousands and thousands of years. So even as a child coming onto the planet, that's already encoded in the genetic code because it's been carried on from generation to generation to generation. And what's happened is that it's created a lot of imprints for an automatic response. Plus there have been events...for most of us, if not all...where we have had some very intense experiences by the roles of someone having the authority over us...being punished, being killed in some cases, or being limited to a certain point where we were never, never allowed to even be ourselves and we were just completely playing the role of the slave.

So this has been going on for 10,000 years. It has been accentuated during that period of time also with the fact that there is a deity that is our god, that is controlling over us and that basically we have to "earn" our capability of our own existence or that in some way our choices, our actions, our thoughts or whatever may have played out will have the result of going somewhere which is alternate to what we would actually desire to do in this illusionary or this illusionary place where we would have damnation or whatever it is.

So this has been encoded over and over and over again. So it has been strongly embedded within ourselves. And then coming onto the planet, of course, it is reinforced because as soon as you step into your mother's womb, you're basically now seeing the roles being played as Mom and Dad are interacting...and because we have a connection with them how they are responding...so that encodes it in you even further. Then you come onto the planet and, like you were saying, Antonia, we start to tell our kids how to do it and, "I'm Mom, (or Dad), I have authority over you. You have to do what we tell you to do," and so forth and so that is reinforced and reactivated even further.

And then you go into the educational system and the teachers are the "authority." They know best. They teach you what you need to know. You cannot question anything. You cannot be yourself in any way. You need to be mandated to have a certain pattern of belief system and a certain pattern of operating within the systems. And so, all of a sudden, they have authority over you. And then, of course, as you go on you end up having other beliefs or whatever else that's part of playing the game. And then you go into the working world and now you have bosses. And then, of course, even when you're self-employed (and in a true world, everybody is self-employed)...but if you're self-employed then you are your own boss. But then, of course, your customers become your boss because whatever they say dictates your success or non-success, which is the illusionary world...I don't want to reinforce that whole concept...but it is kind of reinforced in that way.

But then, of course, you are living in a world of religious affiliation and that's been enforced that there's these deities out there. And then there's the governmental authoritative force, and the military, and the police organizations are authority. And then you have the different levels where we have different systems and where they have control over us and so forth. So we are always subjected to authority.

So what has happened is we have been activating these codes that have been there for thousands and thousands of years. And so it has been very difficult for us to step out of it.

But now the energetic fields that are coming through and everything else that we are going through in our transformation at this point in time is now bringing that up for us to see that realistically, as long as we give ourselves the opportunity to be under authority of someone else, of something else (even an organization), that we are not totally free to be ourselves.

And now, with the transformation we are going through we need to self-empower again. And see not only that...and this is where the key comes in...it's not about us having power...because a lot of the time people say, "Well, we have to self-empower!" Now, how are you looking at it? Are we self-empowering by creating our own personal authority within ourselves? Or are we self-empowering and saying, "I choose to empower myself and I choose to emanate whatever I choose to express, experience, and whatever else...and really I'm doing it freely rather than 'imposing.'" Because, the thing is, it's not about fighting the system with our own personal will and energy saying, "The system is forcing me this way and now I need to use my own authority," and so fighting fire with fire doesn't quite work.

For example, even if we want to free ourselves, we are not going to step in...for example, we want to free ourselves from "the system," say, even the legal system, we're not going to step in there as a lawyer having more legal jargon and more legal capacity and power to fight legal against legal...you step outside of that. You step in as Essence itself, as a human here to express and experience Itself in complete freedom...then you are bringing that power through. Rather than wit against wit, or logic against logic, or creating authority over authority. Because if you're fighting authority over authority saying, "Who has power? Who has more authority? Who can win and lose?"...then you are still part of that game and you're just getting caught up in there. And, of course, what you're going to create is not only more resistance but also back and forth, back and forth, and you are still not free.

Because true freedom means you can step up to any authority and feel absolutely free within yourself. Then it doesn't matter what anybody tries to instigate, they don't have any power over you. And that is our own Essence coming through.

And when you're doing that, you are also creating the dynamics, the energies and so forth to free the other ones that are even playing the opposite role...either the one playing the victim part or the victimizer part, or the one playing the authority or the one under the authority. So it will change all of that as you are going through your part of it.

Anyway, that is just to give you a little taste of what we are choosing to step out of. There's much more we could talk about because we could go through each step of it and look at how to dissect it and, as you said, Antonia, we may need to go through these processes step by step in future calls (teachings).

Antonia

For many of us with the human experience, when you start waking up and you start realizing...like you said, about the manipulation that we have agreed to allow to be in place...sometimes the first reaction is indignation and anger. And that's fine, that's part of the process of awakening. So if you experience that, don't judge it. Just let that emotion go. Like Franco said, often when we feel that way it's because we feel like we've been made "victims of." And just be aware of when that thought enters your head because the moment that you allow that thought to remain there, then you've lost your power.

Instead, go back to neutrality and realize that we've agreed to this. And now that we're changing, we're saying, "That's done. No more! We choose to go forward differently."

For some people who have been taught to be very gentle, that's more difficult. And I'm not talking about standing up and being loud and not being who you are, but there's a sort of "confidence," a "surety" that when you connect deep within yourself, when you know your truth, then nothing around you, whatever happens out there...whatever you hear in the media or whatever you see happening...you just have this knowing. And that's why we are here to allow you to "clear" yourself.

And as we go forward...you know, we are living at the end of an age and the beginning of a new one, and, as with any transition a lot more truths will come to the surface. Some of them will be more difficult to accept or look at, but the more of us who keep a state of neutrality...and in neutrality it doesn't mean you don't care...it just means that you know your truth. And you hold your truth. And there's a peace, and a firmness and a love, and an aspect of creation of Who You Are. From there, is where you create.

And we are creating all the time, we are manifesting all the time. But it's going to change a little bit and how we manifest going forward will be different. It's already starting, but we are still in the period...and Franco has talked about before...we are still in this period of accelerated purge and clear.

But just know that as stuff happens, all is well.

Franco

I just want to expand a little bit on something you said, Antonia.

When you make a choice to change something...like you were saying, you can fight it or whatever...but when you're coming in with peace where you are coming in to a point where you're saying, "OK, I'm no longer participating in this," ...it doesn't matter how much influence and how much energy is coming around or towards you or whatever it is...when you are coming in with straight peace, with love...with unconditional love that is your Essence anyway...and peace...when you are choosing to no longer participate, it is so powerful that even if someone is angry and wants to instigate...if you have no fear, if you have no resistance within self, you are in that state of peace and saying, "You know, I'm not interested in playing with this any longer," ...you see that the other person...or the one who is playing the authoritative role, the one that is influencing, the one that is pushing, or whatever the structure is, will not be able to remain engaged. It will automatically start to feel powerless and will step back.

And you've seen that. I'm sure everybody's had that kind of experience where somebody is angry and you're so detached from that emotional interaction, where you are in a state of peace, it's very difficult to have a fight with anyone. It's very difficult to impose anything on anyone. And I've had these examples of people who have gone through these processes where they actually were in a state of peace and it didn't matter if they were with someone who was very angry, bitter or something like that...it dissolved. These people were not...even though they may have had that role or characteristic as still part of their learning experience and needing to purge and clear, however, whenever they are around that individual who is very peaceful, they cannot be angry. And even if they got activated just prior to that, it would subside very quickly. And this is the same power we have in transforming it.

The most powerful transformation we can have is stepping in, in peace, and choosing, "No, we're no longer playing this role. Thank you for what you provided but we are stepping forward from here." Because as long as we have rebellion and we get into that, then we start fighting with the same energies and it does not transform things in the same way.

But by coming in with peace, by coming in with neutrality, it is very, very powerful. Because it is an energy that dissipates darkness, dissipates resistance, and also hierarchy...or what we could call authority or anything like that...because it can't (hold that energy).

Even a bully coming in, playing a role...I'm just saying that because that's just a role...even a bully coming in...if somebody does not have fear and they are in a very neutral, peaceful state, a bully has no power over them. A bully will not even feel to engage. Even though they want to play that role, they cannot engage with someone of that nature. It dissipates right away because they do not get the response that they need to continue that. Because the energy of that...

Any darker energy needs darkness. And this is why we've been creating fear. Because fear feeds darkness. So you take the fear out of the equation where you are neutral and in peace, good luck in trying to influence that, because it's impossible. Because that dark energy coming through cannot adhere to it because you're emanating light. You're emanating everything opposite to what it needs to feed off of. So, in actual fact, you are feeding the light side of them. So their threads of light...even if they are the most darkest, deepest being playing a role...will be ignited and will start to dissolve the darkness within them.

That's how powerful it is!

Absolutely. And that's one thing we're going to come back to. Because there will be a lot of (what seems to be) upsetting things and the more firmness...it's like a firm grounding in peace...and it's exactly as Franco said. And I'm sure people listening have felt that in their own lives where they felt that and saw the change. And that's what you'll see more and more of as those souls who are waiting to wake up and you'll see that and what an effect it will have.

And if you look at anything that's coming forth...like you were saying there...and you see it for what it is...that it's just a game that we are playing. And you just see it as that and you step into it and say, "Oh, OK. This is the game we've been playing with. Great. Let's change the game now."

You're not in any judgment about it. It's just a game. It doesn't matter what it created as an experience. It's just a game. Perfect. Now let's change the game.

Because we're changing the game because we are upgrading the way we are going to play and we're upgrading the way we experience what we came here to experience. We're just going to play another game.

We're going to change the game. That's it. When you look at it that way, it makes it so much easier because you see that whatever we had opposite being fed to us and it has created whatever...struggle, survival, having to go through all these different slavery aspects of it...and you look at it and say, "Wow! That was a interesting game! I've experienced all of that. Fantastic! Let's change the game now." And this is how powerfully we change the world.

Because when we look at the world we are not going to look at it like it's all screwed up and look at the hellish experience we've had. We have a very polarized experience!!! Yes, we've had a very colourful, dense experience! Great. But look how experientially rich we are. And now let's take this experience and transform to the other side of it...where we bring light, where we bring freedom. We've now seen how it is to be restricted and limited. We know how we felt through it and how our physicalities responded and how our emotions and everything else responded. So now let's to the other thing. Let's change it!!! Let's change the game! We made up the rules anyway so let's go into it and change it.

And that (approach) changes the whole thing...it's very empowering looking at it that way. Rather than saying, "Oh my god! We screwed up. We went through hell and we went through this, and now there's all these bullies out there," ...And especially if we try to bring justice back in and say, "Now they have to pay the price."

Listen, they've all had the experience of both sides...they are just playing a role. Now we are just dissolving that particular role because the need is no longer there as part of our experience.
